ORCID Messaging

Vendors and Service Providers

By connecting your services to the ORCID registry, you can increase the value you provide to the scholarly community with authoritative, highquality profile data, and join our ecosystem of over 5,000 ORCID-integrated systems.

Talking to colleagues

"ORCID is a widely-used, reliable source of validated data about researchers, contributed by the research community, that is a great way to connect with researchers, improves our platform, saves on development costs, and raises our visibility as a trusted partner within the research community."

Talking to users as a Certified Service Provider*

"When you use our ORCID-certified system* you can rest assured that our integration has met community-developed criteria that ensures you will receive the level of functionality and performance you expect."

*Becoming an ORCID Certified Service Provider is free, and there are many benefits, including increased visibility of your service to the research community. Reach out to us to learn more.

ORCID Benefits for Vendors and Service Providers

Rich, interconnected user experience. Enable your customers to gain more value from your services by enabling interoperability using standardized identifiers. Extend the reach of your systems and enrich the entire research ecosystem by pushing and pulling quality data to and from ORCID records.

Improved visibility and discoverability. Improve the visibility and discoverability of your service by adding links to ORCID records, and connecting your own IDs in ORCID's openly-accessible data.

Name disambiguation. Using our authoritative, high quality profile data can increase the precision of your researcher profiles, regardless of the popularity, variability, or language of the names.

A broader view of outputs. Create a broader view of a researcher, institution, or funder's contributions by including activities beyond publications such as affiliations, datasets, peer reviews, grants, and patents.

Reduced administrative burden. No need to patch together data for reporting needs—an increasing number of connected systems means easier access to high quality data, all in one place. Having your customers' users sign in with ORCID reduces the frustration and burden of managing multiple credentials.

Increased platform ROI. Create better insights for your customers from more comprehensive, quality data, while improving efficiency and saving time through automation.

ORCID | Connecting Research and Researchers

Visit https://info.orcid.org/vendors-and-service-providers/ for information and resources.