Why ORCID Matters to LUP

- Challenges faced before ORCID: author disambiguation, metadata consistency, workflow complexity, hijacking.
- ORCID as a solution: reliable identifier (PID) linking authors across publications and systems.
- Value to authors: reduced admin burden, visibility of contributions, long-term professional record.
- Value to the press: improved data quality, global discoverability, streamlined processes.

How We Use ORCID at Liverpool University Press Membership benefits most used:

- Authentication for reliable author ID collection
- ORCID API for integration into workflows
- Reading from / writing to records
- Improved metadata feeds to partners (Crossref, aggregators, discovery tools)

Supporting Organisational Goals

- Efficiency: reduces duplication of effort and manual checks.
- Integrity: trusted metadata strengthens LUP's role in the scholarly ecosystem.
- Visibility: authors' work is more discoverable, benefitting both them and the Press.
- Partnership: alignment with ORCID reflects LUP's commitment to open infrastructure and best practice in scholarly publishing.

Our experience of ORCID

- Challenges: medium-press resource constraints, uneven author awareness
- Successes: adoption rates, author engagement, metadata quality
- Opportunities: expanding ORCID into book workflows

Advice for Small and Medium Size Presses

- First steps: start with ORCID iD collection at submission
- Cost-effective strategies: use consortium support, community resources
- Building momentum: author education & gradual integration
